How we live life together

We gather weekly for fellowship (occasionally over a meal), sermon-based discussion, and prayer. We have a lot of little ones and try to provide childcare while also involving our kids as much as possible. We do a variety of missional things together, such as meal-making parties to provide freezer meals for those in need and supporting local ministries. We also are supporting the RH Teens ministry.

How we live life together

We gather in our homes or the church building for fellowship. During those meetings, we check in with one another, discuss that week's sermon, pray for one another, and plan/brainstorm opportunities to invite others in our area into connection and "belonging." As a team, we specifically try to look out for those in our community who do not have family or close friends nearby. In addition to our regular MC gatherings, we host open events and smaller gatherings for connection. These could look like game nights, craft groups, barbecues, playdates, etc.

How we live life together

We seek to help the fatherless, defend the widow, and welcome the stranger in the Downtown in smaller subgroups. We minister to kids, teens, and marginalized from the Tree Streets Neighborhood. We gather on Mondays and go between times of fellowship and spiritual conversation over a meal to shorter meetings, focused on prayer. Kids play together as we gather and help as we serve missionally. One of our strengths as an MC is mercy ministry, helping others (in the group and beyond) with resources, transportation, and discipling each other's children.

How we live life together

We gather every other week to enjoy each other's company, share some food, have spiritual conversation, and help one another develop deep relationships with God. We focus on discipling new believers or those that are new to our church, helping them to get plugged in and to thrive at Redemption Hill Community. We serve our church by reaching those on the outskirts in our community, and helping them develop deep and lasting friendships.
